DEAR SAA COMMUNITY:

Some months ago when I began drafting this prologue to the 2020 program, I had a list—a long one—of all the wonderful highlights at the year’s conference I wanted to remember to bring to your attention. We chose an engraved illustration of a scene from Hamlet for our cover to correspond to some of our supplemental events, and we were on version 27 (!) of the program schedule, working to finalize it for the program copy. I looked forward to celebrating the rich variety of experiences we were going to be able to offer, the important work we knew we could all do to make the SAA more open and more responsive to everyone’s needs, and, dare I say it, even more fun than ever. Denver promised clear blue skies, incredible mountain views, a beautiful hotel, great food—the perfect setting to renew old friendships and make new ones.

It was, of course, not to be: the COVID19 pandemic was beginning to spiral out of control, and it quickly became clear in March that we would have to cancel the annual meeting for the first time in SAA’s history. We have all been mourning the people and parts of our lives affected by this terrible crisis, including the loss of the conference’s anticipated inspirations and encounters. But SAA’s seminar-oriented structure allowed at least one part of our collective venture to be an unqualified success: the majority of our more than 60 seminars and workshops completed their work virtually. Meanwhile, many of our local sponsors most generously allowed us to keep their contributions to apply to next year’s conference in Austin. Refunds were provided to those who had already registered—but an extraordinary number of you donated your registration to help us cover our costs for the cancellation. We even had an “Alone Society Dance” thanks to a couple of enterprising members, which garnered more funds to use for supporting future members in need. Finally, the Denver Hyatt was generous and accommodating, allowing us to resolve our contract for the year without penalties, and offering us the option to return to them in 2026 to enjoy all the city has to offer. In the end, this was the kind of outcome that I hope reminds us all how unique the SAA is—how deeply our members feel about the organization and how important are the bonds the organization has fostered over the years.

I invite you to join me in reading through this program in order to marvel at the time and energy seminar and workshop leaders and participants put in to make its contents possible, and at the collaboration and cooperation on all fronts that is reflected here. I give my heartfelt thanks to our staff, our local sponsor institutions, our exhibitors, the Board of Trustees, our committees and their members, and all of you. May we meet again in 2021 for the Austin, TX conference, March 31 to April 3.

With warm regards,

*“‘What means that trump?’
 Jeffrey Wilson sounds the Shakespearean resonances of the presidency, from controversial productions to what he terms ‘politicitation.’ Animated by a frank, searching voice, Wilson’s book energetically chronicles our dramatic moment—and how it might end.”*

SAA POLICIES

Social Media Guidelines

In recent years, Twitter, Facebook, and other forms of social media have become a rich resource for scholarly discourse, opening up the conversation to those outside of the conference's physical space. That said, many of us are new to social media, and the conventions around its use are still forming. Here are three basic principles for using Twitter and other social media.

Consent

Recording devices and Twitter broadcast work and comments that have traditionally been relatively closely held. Audio and video recordings of sessions should not be made or posted without the permission of all panelists or seminar members, ideally secured through the moderator or seminar leader in advance of the session. Any speaker has the right to request that his or her work and comments not be tweeted. Please ask subjects involved before posting and tagging photos.

Professional Tone

Twitter feeds represent an extension of the conference online. As such, we encourage participants to consider their comments to be public, avoiding remarks that would be inappropriate in other professional spaces.

Fair Quotation

Live-tweeting often represents itself as a transcript of spoken words. Tweeters should be aware of the potential for misrepresentation, appropriation, and removal of context. It is important to attribute tweets with a speaker's handle or full name (for example, @handle:xxx). Retweeting and favoriting remove tweets from temporal sequence, so it is best to attribute individual tweets, rather than just the first in a sequence.

Sexual Harassment Policy

The SAA strives to be an inclusive and welcoming point of contact for our diverse membership of scholars, teachers, and students from around the world. We take instances of disrespectful, dismissive, patronizing, or harassing behavior—whether in speech or act, whether in formal or informal settings, and whether based on gender, sexuality, race, ethnicity, religious affiliation, ability, status, or age—seriously. Those who are the targets of harassment should not feel unheard or unassisted.

Definitions

Sexual harassment is behavior that demeans, humiliates, or threatens an individual on the basis of their sex. It is unwanted attention that a recipient experiences as offensive or disruptive to personal well-being. Sexual harassment can include crude behavior (such as offensive statements, jokes, or gestures); dismissive or insulting modes or address (such as referring to a woman not by her name but as “honey”); unwelcome sexual attention (such as unwanted touching or repeated requests for dates); and coercion.

Sex-based harassment also takes nonsexual forms when an individual is targeted because of gender or gender expression. It singles out some members of the community as acceptable targets and as unworthy of respect. Harassment never occurs in a vacuum. Frequently, alienating behaviors including race- and religion-based harassments intertwine with sexual harassment. Working to discern, for instance, whether a comment about appearance is aimed primarily at someone's gender, sexuality, religion, or race mistakes how harassment can leave its impact on multiple levels.

The SAA emphasizes the importance of adopting a fully intersectional understanding of sex-based harassment. Harassment not only sabotages the individual; it also damages the Shakespeare Association community by discouraging participation in the Association and compromising the free exchange of ideas that is at the center of our mission as an organization.

Respect

All of the spaces into which our professional meetings extend are professional, and the values of respect, equity, and nondiscrimination should inform conduct in the seminar room and on the dance floor, over coffee, and over drinks. All members should aspire to treat each member as having an equally valuable contribution to make.

What to Do if You Have Been Harassed

The SAA seeks to provide meaningful support to members who have experienced sexual harassment at the annual meeting or related events. If you have experienced any unwelcome behaviors, please contact the executive director or any trustee of the Association. These officially designated contacts can serve as sounding boards, confidantes, and informal advisers; they can also confer with you confidentially about possible next steps. Reporting an incident of sexual harassment does not obligate the reporter to pursue any further action. The SAA's goal above all is to support vulnerable members of the community and to strategize to end the harassment in question. As a voluntary professional organization with a small staff, the SAA is unfortunately limited in its ability to respond formally to charges of sexual harassment. Nonetheless, within these constraints the SAA will follow its professional and ethical responsibility to respond to reports of sexual harassment among its membership.

Academic Integrity

The Shakespeare Association of America thrives on the circulation of new and emerging ideas. The special atmosphere of its annual conference derives in part from its distinctive ways of bringing scholars of all ranks and many kinds of affiliation together for a free exchange of ideas. Unusual openness requires a high degree of academic trust. Given the circulation of work-in-progress that the conference fosters, it is important for all members to follow established citation and copyright guidelines in handling the intellectual property of others, including all abstracts, papers, and talks presented at the SAA.

Always obtain permission before citing unpublished work heard or read at the conference.

Never recirculate another's work in your own scholarship or teaching without the author's permission.

Treat seminar abstracts in the same way as papers read or circulated.

THANK YOU TO THE
UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI
FOR THEIR CONTINUED SUPPORT

The University of Mississippi's English Department offers opportunities for graduate study in Medieval and Renaissance studies with outstanding faculty in a range of fields and approaches. Fellowships and teaching assistantships are available to graduate students with a demonstrated record of achievements, including the Harold J. Kendis and the Colby Kullman supplemental fellowships. The department is a member of the Newberry Library Consortium, which provides our students with additional grant opportunities for research and Newberry program event travel. Mississippi's English department boasts a strong record in academic job placement for our graduates. Located in Oxford, Mississippi, the department also benefits from the literary culture, local charm, and sense of community for which the town is celebrated.
